The Marine Corps Schools

BY MAJ. GEN. LEMUEL C. SHEPHERD, JR.
Commandant, Marine Corps Schools

THE Marine Corps Schools, root of modern amphibious doctrine, has been located at Quantico, Virginia, for thirty years. It is an institution, unique in the emphasis given amphibious operations, established to provide progressive education for officers of the Marine Corps in duties extending from those of an infantry platoon commander to those of the highest Marine echelon.

Maj. Gen. Shepherd

In 1919, the Marine Officers' Training School was established at Quantico. Gallipoli had demonstrated the military embarrassment of a maritime nation which had neglected the development of efficient amphibious doctrines and techniques. In 1921, the organization of the East and West Coast Expeditionary Forces, United States Marine Corps, gave added emphasis to the amphibious nature of the course to be followed. Just as the Marine Corps is a specialist organization, so likewise are the Schools a specialist institution.

The present mission of the Marine Corps Schools derives directly from the National Security Act of 1947—"To train officers in the tactics and techniques of warfare, with particular emphasis on amphibious operations, in order to provide competent commanders and staff officers for the field forces of the Marine Corps; and, continuously to study and review current tactics, technique, and equipment employed by the landing forces, making recommendations to Headquarters for their improvement and development."

Toward the accomplishment of this mission, schools are organized as:

(a) The Amphibious Warfare School, Senior Course, to train field officers for command and staff duties in appropriate echelons of command within the Fleet Marine Forces, with primary emphasis on advanced instruction in the doctrines and techniques of amphibious warfare.

(b) The Amphibious Warfare School, Junior Course, to train majors and captains for command and staff duties within regimental combat teams or air groups of the Fleet Marine Forces, with particular emphasis placed upon the coordinate employment of air, naval, and ground elements in amphibious operations.

(c) The Basic School, to train recently commissioned officers in the duties and responsibilities of Marine officers ashore and afloat, with emphasis on the duties of the platoon commander.

Air Force Makes 1,480
Permanent Promotions

The Air Force has selected and the President has approved the promotion, effective 2 Jan., of 1,480 officers to the permanent grades of lieutenant colonel, major and captain.

The 66 officers promoted to lieutenant colonel, 88 to major and 1,326 to captain were selected from among 1,543 officers eligible for advancement. This means that 63 Air Force officers were passed over.

Two pass overs, under provisions of the Officer Personnel Act of 1947, result in the separation of an officer from active service.

Eligible for promotion were all permanent majors with 21 years of service for promotion purposes prior to 1 Jan., 1950; all permanent captains with 14 years of service; and all permanent first lieutenants with seven years of promotion service prior to 1 July, 1949.

The complete list of officers on the eligible list was published in the 11 Dec., 1948, issue of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL.

Deferred from promotion were three permanent majors, 10 captains and 50 first lieutenants.

The 2 Jan. promotions bring the Air Force permanent officer strength in the three grades to 1,470 lieutenant colonels, 3,275 majors and 6,300 captains.

An unofficial analysis of the selection board results reveals that of the officers promoted to the grade of permanent lieutenant colonel, four held temporary rank as colonels, 39 as lieutenant colonels, while 23 were majors.

Among the officers selected for promotion to major, two were colonels, 11 were lieutenant colonels, 44 were majors and 31 held rank as captains.

Maj. Gen. Howard M. Turner, vice commander of Continental Air Command, Mitchell AFB, Hempstead, N. Y., was president of the selection board. Other members of the board were Brig. Gen. Archie J. Old, Jr., Brig. Gen. George H. Beverley, Col. Bayard Johnson, Col. Rox H. Donaldson, Col. Alvin L. Pachynski, and Col. Monro MacCloskey.

Secy. Royall Returns

Increased efficiency and heightened morale of Army troops in Europe and the Mediterranean area, coupled with improvements in the German food situation which are permitting savings to American taxpayers, provide great encouragement, Secretary of the Army Kenneth C. Royall said this week.

Returning from a three week inspection trip to Germany, Austria, Trieste, Greece and Turkey, Secretary Royall told a press conference that the venereal disease rate among Army troops is down 50 per cent; the court martial rate has decreased more than 50 per cent; and reenlistments are running far ahead of last year among troops of the European Command.

The Army Secretary revealed that as a result of improved economy under American military government in Germany and Japan, the Army's request for government and relief in occupied areas (Please turn to Page 549)

AF Top-Grade Promotions

Air Force personnel officials throughout the world this week were completing preparations for the promotion on 1 Feb. of approximately 1,000 airmen to the ranks of technical and master sergeant.

The Air Force announced late last year that 2,250 enlisted men would be promoted to the top two pay grades. Of this number, half were to be promoted on 1 Dec. and half on 1 Feb. The action marked the first thaw in a two-year freeze on promotions to technical and master sergeant.

It has been reported unofficially that another 750 men would receive promotions to the top pay grade in the near future. These 3,000 total promotions are described as an interim measure pending inauguration of the airman career program.

Temp. Promotion to 1st Lt.

Army second lieutenants temporarily promoted to first lieutenant on and after 1 Dec. 1948 will be given an effective date of rank as of the day they complete 18 months' service if the advancements are effected before they complete 21 months' service, an official announcement reported this week.

Officers promoted to first lieutenant subsequent to completion of 21 months' service will rank from the date of the order promoting them.

Army officials said that action under the provision of these rulings will not change the pay status of the officers concerned. Pay of the high grade will be drawn from the effective date of the promotion orders.

Promotion Zones for Marines

Promotion zones were established this week by the Marine Corps for officers eligible for promotion to the ranks of major general and brigadier general.

The major general board, which convened this week, will consider all eligible brigadier generals down through Brig. Gen. Ray Robinson.

The board to select brigadier generals will consider all eligible colonels through Col. Ralph M. Pate. It will convene on 26 Jan.

New Congress Presses
Tax Exemption and Pay

The 81st Congress was off to a flying start this week as various Armed Forces measures—particularly those affecting extension of income tax exemptions and revision upwards of Service pay—were brought immediately into the legislative limelight.

The President will send his 1950 budget to Congress on Monday, 10 Jan. The word has gone forth that the budget carries an estimate for the additional fund necessary to put pay increases into effect. This, together with the fact that such House leaders as Representative Doughton (D-N.C.) and Representative Vinson (D-Ga.), respective chairmen of the Ways and Means and Armed Services Committee, are planning stop-gap tax exemptions only until 30 June, is indicative of the confidence that new pay scales will be in effect by that date.

The early days of the new Congress, which promises to be of vital importance to the future of the Armed Services, were characterized by the introduction of more than two score bills affecting the Armed Forces and by the reshuffling of the membership of committees which will consider National Military Establishment legislation.

Among legislation introduced was a pattern bill by Representative Vinson to extend the income tax exemptions until 30 June. Representative Doughton told the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL that he has directed the preparation of necessary legislation to safeguard the pay of military personnel.

As reported in last week's issue of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL, the report of Secretary of Defense James Forrestal's civilian committee on pay already has been submitted to the committees where its proposals are receiving interested study from key Congressional members.

Secretary Forrestal, who has included the tax relief request and adoption of new pay scales for military personnel on his list of "top priority" legislation, revealed this week that he probably will ask the Bureau of the Budget to approve some form of permanent tax exemption for enlisted personnel as a feature of the new pay system.

As preparations moved ahead on Capitol Hill to keep take-home-pay for military personnel at current levels while consideration is being given to needed pay increases, finance and disbursing officers of all Services were completing final arrangements for inaugurating the collection of withholding taxes from all soldiers, sailors and airmen.

Presumably, if the legislation to continue the tax exemptions for military personnel is not enacted before the end of January, tax money collected will be refunded at a later time, providing, of course, that Congress acts favorably on this legislation.

That there will be approval for the tax exemption proposal is indicated in the statement by Representative Woodruff (R-Mich.), sponsor of original legislation remitting certain income tax payments of military personnel, that he will

Baltimore Sun—"The most important feature of the pay-raise recommendations for the Armed Services is that they are designed to make the Services more attractive as a career, to give an advantage to the long-term man, whether commissioned or enlisted."

Washington Post—(The Hook Commission Report) "recognizes that military pay cannot fall too far behind industrial salaries without working a detriment to the efficiency of the military services. The disparities are most apparent in the positions of greatest responsibility, namely, the officer corps, and it is here that the commission advocates the greatest increases."

New York Times—"It may seem at first glance that high ranking officers are being given much the best of things. But it is the officers who have suffered most from rising costs of living in recent years and who have gone the longest without an increase in base pay."

St. Paul Pioneer Press—"The major conclusion of the military branch of the Hoover commission in its report is that the present unification system is on the right track and that actual physical consolidation of the Army, Navy and Air Force would be a mistake."

Houston Chronicle—"State authorities are not going to welcome the proposal of Secretary Forrestal that the air arm of the National Guard be Federalized. It is, however, difficult to see why the Secretary should take on new troubles before he has disposed of those that already confront him. It is the first duty of the Department of National Defense to set its own house in order and really make unification work before it seeks to invade the functions and authority of the various States."

Kansas City Times—"The defense department's plan for a single air reserve looks to be the only way of building a really strong civilian organization to back up the regular Air Force."

Secy. Symington Inspection

Technical improvements in operation of the Berlin airlift are "astounding," according to Secretary of the Air Force W. Stuart Symington, but personnel need more recreation and improved living conditions.

Secretary Symington has returned to Washington from an inspection trip to Germany and to the Air Force bases in England.

He reported that American and British planes now are landing or taking off every 40 seconds in the western sector of Berlin.

Secretary Symington said men on Operations Vittles "are doing a wonderful job and one that is awfully important. Our fear is that the people may start taking it for granted."

That the Air Force was not taking for granted the difficulties being experienced by airmen shifted suddenly to Europe for airlift duty is revealed in inauguration of "Operations Information," a project designed to ascertain the gripes of officer and enlisted personnel.

It has been learned by special "Operation Information" teams that airmen are most concerned about slow mail, lack of recreation facilities, and worry over dependents, while ground crews felt that their work is not being appreciated as much as that of the pilots.

The Air Force has taken measures to speed up mail deliveries, is spending thousands of dollars for new recreation centers and has disclosed plans to rotate personnel ordered to Europe for temporary service. This temporary service now has extended to more than half a year for many officers and enlisted men, who left their families on short notice.

In February, 134 air crews will be returned to the United States or to stations where their families are living overseas, many of them in the Pacific area. This group will have put in from six to seven months on airlift duty.

About 1,000 ground crewmen are slated for return in February. Maj. Gen. William H. Tunner, airlift commander, said in no case will airmen on temporary duty be retained in Europe for more than seven months—except as volunteers—once the initial backlog of eligibles is eliminated. Ground crewmen, except for key personnel, will not be kept for more than eight months.

With regard to hardships being experienced by dependents of airmen, who were ordered suddenly to Europe for airlift duty, it is recalled that General Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Force Chief of Staff, has ordered commanders to render whatever assistance possible to these families, so many of whom were left at overseas stations.

Gen. Marshall Resigns

President Truman at his press conference yesterday announced that he has accepted the resignation of Secretary of State George C. Marshall and Under Secretary of State Robert A. Lovett.

To replace them, President Truman will appoint Dean G. Acheson, former Assistant Secretary of State, and James E. Webb, Director of the Bureau of the Budget.

Mr. Acheson has been chairman of the United States section of the Permanent Joint Board on Defense, an American-Canadian group. He served as an officer in the U. S. Navy during World War I.

BRIG. GEN. PAUL H. STREIT who will assume command of the Army Medical Center and Walter Reed General Hospital, Washington, D. C., on 15 Jan. General Streit, who comes to Washington from Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., where he commanded Brooke General Hospital, is one of the profession's outstanding ear, eye, nose, and throat specialists.

Army General Officer Board

Under presidency of Lt. Gen. Alvan C. Gillem, Jr., Commanding General, Third Army, a board to consider officers for both permanent and temporary promotions to the grades of major general and brigadier general is slated to meet on or about 12 Jan. at the Pentagon.

Other members are:

Lt. Gen. Willis D. Crittenger, Senior U. S. Army Member, U. S. Military Staff Committee to the United Nations.

Lt. Gen. John R. Hodge, Commanding General, V Corps.

Lt. Gen. Raymond S. McLain, Chief of Information, Department of the Army.

Lt. Gen. Stephen J. Chamberlin, Commanding General, Fifth Army.

Maj. Gen. Thomas B. Larkin, The Quartermaster General.

All permanent brigadier generals, Regular Army, who will have completed one year's service in the permanent grade of brigadier general on 30 June 1949, will be considered for promotion to the permanent rank of major general.

Permanent brigadier generals will be chosen from among all permanent colonels in the Regular Army who will have completed one year's service in that grade on the above date.

All Army officers, Regular and non-Regular, serving on extended active duty in the grade of brigadier general will be considered for promotion to the rank of temporary major general.

Permanent colonels, Regular Army, will be considered for promotion to the grade of temporary brigadier general, provided they will have completed one year's service in the permanent grade of colonel on 30 June 1949. All Non-Regular Army officers serving on extended active duty in the rank of colonel also are eligible for consideration.

It was reported in last week's issue of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL that approximately 1800 officers are eligible for consideration for promotions to the general officer grades.

Officers of the Medical Department and Chaplains Corps will not be included for promotion to ranks of major general or brigadier general at this time, the Army said.

Medical Dept. Officers

In line with the policy of cooperation between the Army Medical Department and civilian medicine, 28 Army Medical Department officers are now serving as part-time instructors on the faculties of civilian medical schools, Maj. Gen. Raymond W. Bliss, Army Surgeon General, announced this week.

Medical Department officers who serve on the faculties of civilian institutions, he said, do so voluntarily, without remuneration and, in many cases, on their own time.

The case of Lt. Col. Augustus M. Davison, MC, whose Army assignment is Chief of the Rheumatic Disease Section of the Army and Navy General Hospital at Hot Springs National Park, Ark., is indicative of the type of work being done by Army officers. Colonel Davison serves part-time as Assistant Professor of Rheumatology at the University of Arkansas School of Medicine at Fayetteville. His duties include lecturing to junior classes, and supervision of certain student clinics in arthritis.

Other Army officers assigned to the Army and Navy General Hospital and assisting at the University of Arkansas School of Medicine are: Col. Charles T. Young, MC; Col. Ralph M. Patterson, MC, and Maj. Edward B. Shires, MC.

The following, all assigned to Fitzsimons General Hospital, are serving part-time on the faculty of the University of Colorado Medical School: Col. Anthony J. Vadala, MC; Lt. Col. Donald B. Peterson, MC; Col. D. S. Kellogg, MC; Col. James H. Forsee, MC; Lt. Col. Harold S. McBurney, MC; Col. Hugh W. Mahon, MC, and Col. Carl W. Tempel, MC.

Among those assigned to Oliver General Hospital, Augusta, Ga., and aiding part-time on the faculty at the University of Georgia, are: Col. Earl C. Lowry, MC; Col. Charles L. Leedham, MC; Maj. Benjamin B. Sanford, MC; Capt. Hoyt C. Harris, MC, and 1st Lt. Lionel A. Schwartz, MC.

Three Army Medical Center (Walter Reed General Hospital) officers assist on the faculty of Georgetown University Medical School, Washington, D. C. They are: Col. Harold I. Amory, MC; Lt. Col. Eugene R. Inwood, MC, and Lt. Col. Beverly E. Smith, MC.

Lt. Col. John W. Kemble, MC, also at Walter Reed, aids part-time at George Washington University Medical School of Washington, D. C.

Maj. Edwin J. Pulaski, MC, Brooke General Hospital, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., serves also at the University of Texas.

Lt. Col. Edgar A. Blair, MSC, Ft. Knox, Ky., acts as a staff member of the Louisville Medical School.

The following officers, currently assigned to the Office of the Surgeon General, aid in colleges as indicated: Col. Paul I. Robinson, MC, Washington School of Medicine, St. Louis, Mo.; Col. John M. Caldwell, Jr., MC, Georgetown University; Lt. Col. Joseph L. Bernier, DC, Georgetown University School of Dentistry; Lt. Col. Jacob L. Brause, MC, Georgetown University School of Dentistry; Lt. Col. Charles S. Gersoni, MC, Georgetown University, and Maj. Thomas C. Jones, VC, George Washington University.

Air Force Recruiting

A total of 3,007 officers, warrant officers, and enlisted personnel of the first five grades will be transferred from the Army to the Air Force on 1 Feb. for recruiting duties. The adjusted troop basis allocation results from transfer to the Air Force of certain recruiting responsibilities heretofore delegated to the Army.

Wins Retired Pay Suit

The U. S. Court of Claims recently decided that an officer of the Army who served on active duty prior to 12 Nov. 1918, until 1926, when he was retired in the grade of first lieutenant for physical disability, and who was advanced in 1944 to the grade of major on the retired list for additional physical disability incurred while serving temporarily in the higher grade while on active duty during the period 1942-1945, is entitled to have counted his inactive service on the retired list from 1926 to 1942, in computing his retired pay upon reversion to inactive status in 1945.

This decision of the Court of Claims reverses a prior decision of the Comptroller General (26 Comp. Gen. 323) who held that officers of the Army under such conditions were not entitled to have inactive service on the retired list counted for retired pay purposes.

The suit in the Court of Claims was brought by Maj. Donald F. Carroll, USA-Ret. (now deceased) who was represented in this suit by Messrs. Ansell and Ansell of Washington, D. C.

The Court in referring to these provisions said:

"On 26 Dec. 1944, when the plaintiff was promoted on the retired list to the rank of major, he was receiving active duty pay as an officer of such rank with over twenty-three years' service under section 1 of the Pay Readjustment Act of 1942, supra. In addition, at that time under the same statutory provisions he was receiving eight 'fogies' each amounting to five per cent for each three years of his service, for his total of twenty-four years' service. The plaintiff contends that it was the purpose of the Act of 29 June 1943, that upon his reversion to the retired list following his promotion thereon he should receive retired pay computed at the rate of 75 per cent of such active duty pay."

"We think plaintiff's contention is correct. The language of section 15 of the Pay Readjustment Act, supra, is clear and unambiguous as to officers who had served in the military or naval forces prior to 12 Nov. 1918. This plaintiff was first appointed on 1 Nov. 1918, and he comes within this provision."

"At the time he was promoted on the retired list to the rank of major he was receiving active duty pay based on twenty-three years' service. Under section 1 of the Pay Readjustment Act, which provides that officers on active duty 'shall be credited with full time for all periods during which they have held commissions as officers . . .', he was entitled to receive pay computed at the rate of 75 per cent of such active duty pay."

It should be noted that this provision is limited to officers who serve in any capacity as a member of the military or naval forces of the United States prior to 12 Nov. 1918.

Insurance Disability Liability

In two actions tried recently before a jury at Helena, Mont., the rule was reaffirmed that when a career officer in the U. S. Army, with no comparable occupation to turn to, is retired because of physical disability, he is "totally and permanently disabled" within the meaning of contracts of insurance issued by commercial insurance companies.

Col. A. A. Fall, USA-Ret., who prevailed in a case tried in the Helena court without a jury last spring, and which was noted in the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL of 24 April 1948, was successful in December in a case against another insurance company. Immediately following the trial of the Fall case, the two cases of Col. Lawrence H. Bixby, USA-Ret., were consolidated and tried with the resulting judgment in his favor. Each of these two retired officers was represented by Victor H. Fall, an attorney at Helena, Mont., and a brother of Col. A. A. Fall.

Army and Air Force Warrants

The Army and Air Force yesterday afternoon announced the appointment of 282 additional warrant officers, junior grade, 116 in the Army and 166 in the Air Force.

Enlisted personnel receiving appointments will become warrant officers upon passing physical examinations. Officers will continue to service in present grade.

Listed below are the Army and Air Force appointments, with the present temporary grade of successful warrant officer candidates.

Secretary of Defense James Forrestal has announced that the Armed Forces Special Weapons Project is inviting regular and reserve medical officers of the Army, Navy and Air Force to attend an indoctrination course on medical aspects of atomic explosion. The course will be held at the Sternberg Auditorium, Army Medical Center, Washington, D. C., 24 Jan. to 1 Feb. 1949.

The course will be given in cooperation with the American College of Physicians. Government agencies participating will be the Atomic Energy Commission, the Veterans Administration and the U. S. Public Health Service.

Army regular and reserve officers on active duty may apply for the course. Reserves not on active duty may apply to the Commanding General of their respective Army Areas. Upon acceptance of their application, they will be ordered to temporary active duty for duration of the course. Deadline for applications is 15 Jan.

Any Naval regular or reserve medical officer interested in attending should make application by air mail letter to the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery not later than 10 Jan. The Bureau will acknowledge all applications in order that candidates will know of their acceptance. Accepted Naval candidates will attend the course at their own expense under temporary additional duty orders with government air transportation if available.

All Air Force personnel attending the study will be on active duty. Applications may be made through channels to the Air Surgeon. Applications must be submitted by 10 Jan.

Army JAGS May Be Promoted

As the Army was completing preparations for inauguration of its new code of military justice, a feature of which is creation of a separation promotion list for Judge Advocate General Department officers, it was revealed this week that promotions will be possible when the law becomes effective on 1 Feb.

Here are the statistics: The JAGD is entitled to 575 Regular officers, of whom five may be generals. Actually, there are now 335 permanent officers on active duty. Of this number there are one major general, two temporary brigadier generals and one permanent brigadier general.

By ranks, the new legislation permits the JAGD to have eight per cent or 46 colonels, 14 per cent or 80 lieutenant colonels, 19 per cent or 108 majors, 23 per cent or 131 captains and 36 per cent or 205 first lieutenants.

Presently on duty, in addition to the general officers, are 18 Regular Army colonels; 110 lieutenant colonels, 137 majors, 43 captains and 22 first lieutenants. The JAGD has also approximately 250 reserve officers now on active duty.

Creation of the separate promotion list, provided by the legislation, will give the JAGD vacancies for 28 new colonels; 88 captains and 183 first lieutenants. The JAGD currently has an average of 30 officers and in the rank of major, an average of 29 officers.

Insofar as general officer rank is concerned, the legislation provides for two major generals, one to be The Judge Advocate General and the other to be The Assistant Judge Advocate General. Additionally, three brigadier generals are authorized.

Air Career Program

Progress of the Air Force career guidance program has so advanced that announcement of the inauguration of initial fields can be expected in the immediate future.

Air Force officials reportedly are considering whether to make announcement of the inauguration of various career fields separately or whether to issue a comprehensive statement.

Regardless of the decision, it is understood that some official statement concerning the career guidance program will be released within the next few weeks.

Maximum Recall Ages

An Army announcement revealed this week that "requirements for officers have generally been met with only limited vacancies available" for Reservists seeking recall to active duty.

At the same time, Army officials disclosed that the following maximum ages in grade for recall to active duty of all officers, including Chaplains, Medical Department officers and WACs, will be enforced: 2d Lt., 32; 1st Lt., 37; Capt., 42; Maj., 47 and Lt. Col., 52.

It was reported that no quotas are available for recall of colonels and warrant officers.

Medical Career Fields

The medical care and treatment field of the Army's career guidance program is slated for implementation early in 1949, it was reported this week.

In addition to the medical care and treatment field, Medical Department aspects of the career guidance program probably also will include promotion ladders in laboratory and health service, supply, mechanical equipment maintenance and photography and photographic processing.

Army sources reported that officer, warrant officer and enlisted experts in specialties relating to the medical care and treatment field are being brought to Washington to assist the Personnel Research and Procedures Branch of the Adjutant General's Office in formulating promotion examinations.

Tentative plans for the laboratory and health service fields are said to have been drafted also.

UNITED STATES ARMYGen. Bradley's Statement

Following is a transcript of remarks by General Omar N. Bradley, U. S. Army Chief of Staff, on a year-end broadcast:

"Nations—like people—are pitted in a constant struggle for survival. They are possessed of the same desires for enrichment; afflicted with the same envies and distrust. Just as there is need for regulation—in the public interest—of competition between peoples, so is there need for regulation of the absolute powers of nation states.

"But while we look hopefully to international cooperation as the arbiter of this bitter world struggle in which we are engaged, we still cannot escape the responsibilities that accrue to us as the most productive and most powerful member of the whole community of nations. The United States cannot accept United Nations merely as a headache powder to ease the pains of this troubled world. We cannot completely delegate our responsibilities as world citizens to commissions and committees in the wishful belief that peace is possible simply through conference and conversation.

"Peace can come only when the empty stomachs that plague this earth are filled with food and only when the aching bodies of peoples oppressed by misery and fatigue are sustained with tools that will better their lives.

"The American people already have created in their factories a world industrial revolution. The productive power of our New World has pointed the hopes of millions toward a day when freedom from want might become a universal heritage rather than the fortune of a few. But if the force of this 20th Century, made-in-America revolution is to be used peacefully for the benefit of needy peoples—not exploited by others for aggression—then the United States must share in providing such moral and political guidance as we can summon with all the vigor and imagination at our command.

"And this is the task of a lifetime."

Army Temporary Promotions

The Army has reduced the zone of consideration for temporary promotion of first lieutenants to the rank of captain and has increased the number of non-Regular eligibles, it was disclosed this week.

All Regular officers serving in the grade of first lieutenant who have five or more years service as of 31 Dec. 1948 will be eligible for promotion. Non regulars serving in the grade of first lieutenant who have five or more years active Federal commissioned service on extended active duty since 7 Dec. 1941 also will be eligible.

Previously, it was announced that Regular first lieutenants with four years service would be eligible, while reserves were required to have served on active duty in the grade of first lieutenant from 30 June 1944.

At the same time, the Army extended the time limit on field recommendations for promotion of officers from 15 Jan. to 1 Feb. Recommendations for promotion of officers to the temporary rank of major are to be submitted to the Department of the Army not later than 15 Jan.

Two Generals from Tokyo

Maj. Gen. Hugh J. Casey, who has been General Douglas MacArthur's Chief Engineer since before the Japanese attack on the Philippines, will leave Japan to assume duties in the Office, Chief of Engineers, it was reported from Tokyo this week.

At the same time, a Tokyo announcement said Brig. Gen. Rupert E. Starr, Headquarters Commandant, has been ordered to duty with the 2d Armored Division at Camp Hood, Tex.

Army Permanent Promotions

Permanent promotions of Army officers to the grades of lieutenant colonel, major and captain will be reported officially in Special Orders #1, 1949, it was reported late this week.

Official date of rank will be from 2 January, the date of the Special Orders.

The third volume in the historical series depicting the U. S. Army in World War II entitled "Okinawa: The Last Battle" will go on sale 10 Jan. Priced at $6.00, the book may be purchased from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C.

34th Inf. Div. Association

Critical Army Dentist Shortage

The strength of the Army Dental Corps was cut almost in half during 1948 and should be doubled immediately to meet current requirements, an ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL survey revealed this week.

Yet despite the critical shortage of professional personnel, the Dental Corps continued in 1948 its outstanding record of service to Army personnel and their dependents, notwithstanding certain reductions in service made necessary by the manpower deficiencies.

Army officials have disclosed that the strength of the Dental Corps at the end of 1947 was 1,650 officers, approximately 250 dentists short of requirements.

But by the end of 1948, this strength was depleted to only 875 dentists on active duty, against the increased requirement of 2,250 dental officers.

Less publicized generally than the Army's doctor shortage, the lack of adequate dentists reportedly is providing the more trying problem for the Medical Department during the first months of 1949.

Remedial legislation is believed almost certain of passage by the 81st Congress. In the interim, however, as colleagues leave the Service to open or renew more lucrative civilian practices, the small corps of Army dentists is rendering patriotic service in safeguarding the health of officer and enlisted personnel and their dependents throughout the world.

Nonetheless, National Military Establishment officials, including Secretary of Defense James Forrestal, have indicated that there is a limit to the physical capabilities of dental officers in caring for the expanding Army. Therefore, some form of draft legislation to bring additional dentists into the Army will be introduced before the 81st Congress.

Credited as being a major step in enhancing the Army dentist's ability to render efficient service is the recent Army regulation which elevated the importance of dentists by making the dental surgeon of a major command directly responsible to the commanding officer. Previously, the staff surgeon represented the dental unit also.

Maj. Gen. Thomas L. Smith, Chief Dental Corps, explains that "the new Army Regulation gives recognition to dental officers for their professional training and gives them the privilege of administering their own service and activities and makes them responsible only to the commanding officer in charge."

Maj. Gen. Raymond W. Bliss, The Surgeon General, says that civilian dentists who contemplate a career in the Army will find that the new regulations give them further advantages as dental officers. For in addition to the opportunity of advancing in their profession, dental officers now can progress to a position where they will have administrative control over their own services.

Suspend Two Year Enlistments

The Army on 15 Jan. will terminate authority to grant enlistments for two years in the Regular Army.

Apparently, the action is being taken as a result of a high enlistment and reenlistment rate and also as a result of an impending cutback in the accelerated expansion of the Army due to budgetary limitations.

this year will be $1,100,000,000, a decrease of $200,000,000 over last year. Additionally $50,000,000 of current appropriations for these purposes will not be expended.

In another fiscal advance, Secretary Royall noted that the Army has made up a deficit of $362,000,000 in Germany, Austria and Japan. This deficit resulted when the Army converted into dollars marks, shillings and yen presented by American soldiers, who had obtained the currency, usually by exchanging various items of property, such as watches, cigarettes and soap, for foreign money.

Concerning the increased reenlistment rate, Secretary Royall noted that whereas one year ago only about 1 per cent of enlisted personnel anticipating completion of service expressed the intent to sign up again, the figure today is 18.5 per cent, with a 50 per cent sign-up rate anticipated for those whose enlistments expire between September 1948 and June 1949.

The Army Secretary emphasized that the morale of troops is high and observed that the crack 1st Infantry Division has regained its wartime excellence. He said the discipline of the honor guards in Berlin and Heidelberg was unexcelled and praised the Negro troop units at Kisingen, where there are a constabulary battalion and schools totalling some 5000 men, largely officered by Negroes. Secretary Royall added that the "incident rate" is lower among Negro troops than among white units.

Secretary Royall also was pleased with the conduct of American officers and enlisted personnel in Greece. During his visit to that country, the Army Secretary moved close to front line positions to obtain first-hand observation of action against the guerrillas. He said American officers are not supposed to go any further forward than division headquarters. He said there have been no reports of American casualties in Greece.

Summarizing his impressions of the European and Mediterranean inspections, Secretary Royall reiterated a previous statement that war is not imminent, said the forces of democracy are growing stronger and maintained that the determination to resist Communist aggression is growing.

To Study Army Civilian Components

Secretary of the Army Kenneth C. Royall this week appointed a special 12-man committee, headed by former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, to examine the troop basis of the National Guard and the Organized Reserve Corps.

The committee, slated to hold its first meeting in February, will determine whether the size and distribution of the Army's civilian components are adequate and practicable "in the light of present national defense needs."

Apparently, the group will review ground covered by the Gray Board, which studied civilian components of all services, but with far greater emphasis on problems peculiar to the Army.

In addition to Mr. Byrnes, two other members from civilian life are Mr. Charles E. Wilson, President of General Electric Company and Mr. Frank E. Holman, President of the American Bar Association.

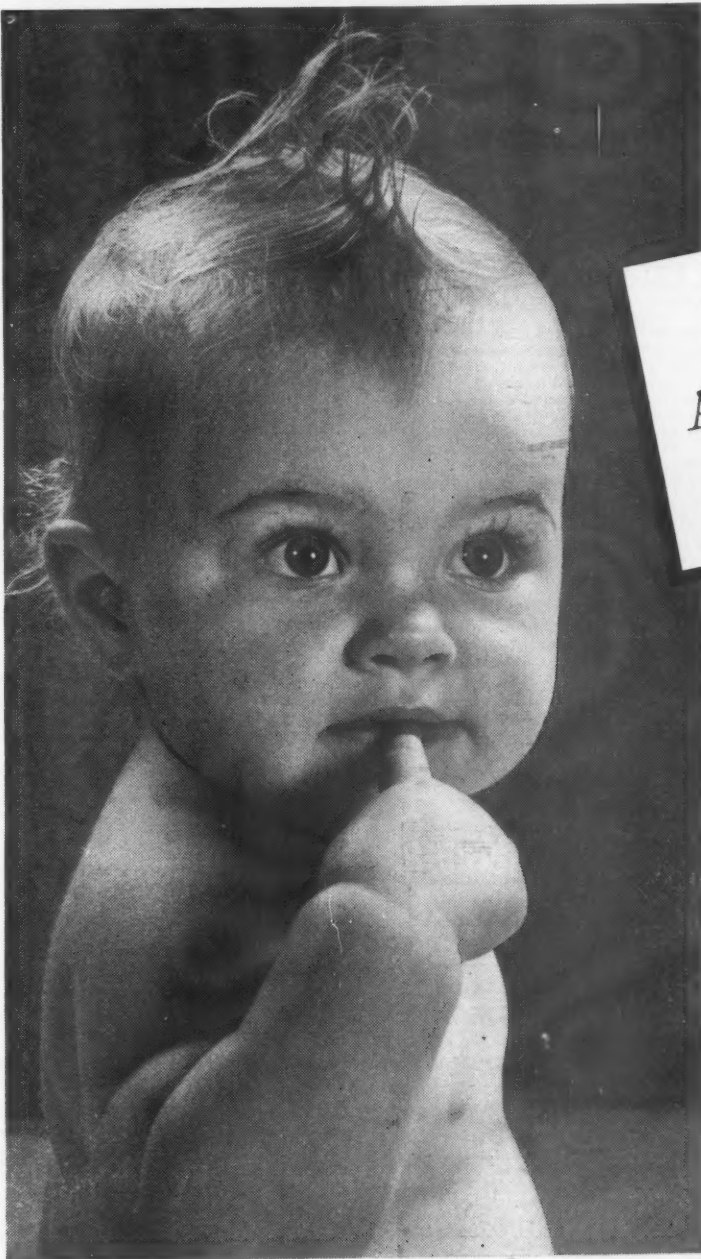

The National Guard Representatives appointed to the Committee are Maj. Gen. Ellard A. Walsh of St. Paul, Adjutant General of Minn., and President of the National Guard Association, Maj. Gen. Sumter Lowry of Tampa, Fla., CG of the 51st Division and Brig. Gen. John A. Harris of Jefferson City, Adjutant General of Mo.

The members representing the Organized Reserve Corps are Maj. Gen. Hanford MacNider of Mason City, Iowa, former Assistant Secretary of War and U.S. Minister to Canada, Maj. Gen. Julius Ochs Adler of New York, Vice-President and General Manager of the New York Times and CG 77th Div. and Col. Clarence E. Barnes of Guthrie, Oklahoma, President, Reserve Officers Association.

The Regular Army representatives are General Mark W. Clark, Commanding General Sixth Army, Lt. Gen. Leonard Gerow, CG 2nd Army and Lt. Gen. Manton S. Eddy, Commandant of the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kans.

Women's Army Corps

All applicants for integration into the Women's Army Corps, Regular Army, who were not nominated in the first increment, will be notified by 30 Jan. of action taken by the Army. Officials said the next two increments will be nominated within nine months. It was added that appointments in second and third increments will effect no disadvantage as regards grade of appointment and position on the promotion list.

Have You Heard
About the Telephone
Birth Rate?

1948 was a mighty big year for additions to the telephone world.

Your own particular telephone is more valuable today, millions of calls go through clearer and quicker, because of the many things that have been done to extend and improve service.

You can call more people, and more can call you, because nearly 3,000,000 Bell telephones were added to the telephone population — many in your own community.

Long Distance is faster and there is more of it because 1,800,000 miles of new circuits were added. A total of $1,500,000,000 was invested in new Local and Long Distance facilities in 1948.

We broke all records for the volume of new telephone construction, the dollars we put into the job and the number of telephone people on the job.

We're going to keep right on working and building in 1949 to make your telephone service a bigger bargain than ever.

Mediterranean Ships Relieved

Navy ships in the Mediterranean will be relieved this month on station by an equivalent number of similar types in accordance with the Navy's policy of frequently rotating vessels in that area.

Headed by the Essex-class aircraft carrier, the USS Philippine Sea, the relieving ships, all from the U. S. Atlantic Fleet, will include two light cruisers, 10 destroyers and a cargo vessel.

In addition to the Philippine Sea, the relief ships include the light cruisers Manchester and Spokane; the destroyers Everett F. Larson, Goodrich, Hanson, Herbert, J. Thomas, Gearing, Eugene A. Greene, Vogelgesang, Steinaker, Kenneth D. Bailey, and the Charles R. Ware. One cargo vessel, the USS Winston, is also in the group.

Marine personnel aboard the vessels now stationed in the Mediterranean will also be replaced.

The relief ships left East Coast ports on 4 Jan., and are scheduled to arrive at Gibraltar nine days later. Most of the ships now on Mediterranean duty are scheduled to depart from Gibraltar on the following day for East Coast ports. They are the large aircraft carrier, Franklin D. Roosevelt; the light cruisers Providence and Little Rock; the Compton, Gainard, Harlan R. Dickson, Hugh Purvis, Hyman, Beatty, George K. Mackenzie, Ernest G. Small, Poer and Glenmon; and the cargo ship, Montague. The USS Albany, heavy cruiser, will remain in the Mediterranean to be relieved at a later date.

Accompanying the relieving ships will be six other United States Naval vessels, headed by the USS Midway, large aircraft carrier. Together with the relief vessels, they will conduct intensive training in carrier task force operations while proceeding to the Mediterranean. Besides the Midway, this group will include the four high speed minesweepers, Ellyson, Hambleton, Fitch, and Gherardi, and the submarine, USS Spinnax.

Rear Adm. Joseph J. Clark, Commander of Carrier Division Four, will command the task force, flying his flag in the Philippine Sea.

After brief good-will visits to ports in the Mediterranean, the Midway and her five accompanying vessels will return to the U. S. departing from Gibraltar about 21 Feb. On their return they will be accompanied by the USS Tarawa, Essex-class carrier, and her two escorting destroyers, the D. J. Buckley and the Hawkins, now en route home from Far East waters via the Suez Canal.

U. S. NAVY & MARINE CORPS

Two other destroyers, the USS Harold J. Ellison and USS Gyatt, at the time of the Mediterranean relief, will relieve two destroyers in British waters, the USS Purdy and the USS Bristol.

The Mediterranean relief ships will become a part of the Sixth Task Fleet commanded by Vice Admiral Forrest P. Sherman.

Admiral Hewitt Will Retire

Admiral Henry Kent Hewitt, representative of the Chief of Naval Operations on the Military Staff Committee of the United Nations Security Council, will retire 1 March, at which time three other flag officers will be shifted to new duty stations.

Rear Adm. Bernhard H. Bieri, Commandant of the Eleventh Naval District, will relieve Admiral Hewitt on the Military Staff Committee, and will in turn be relieved by Rear Adm. Wilder D. Baker, now serving as Commander of the Atlantic Fleet Services Forces. Rear Adm. Roscoe F. Good, Commander of Cruiser Division Three, will take over Admiral Baker's command. No relief has yet been designated for Admiral Good.

Born in Hackensack, N. J., in 1887, Admiral Hewitt was graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy with the class of 1907. During World War II he commanded the Western Naval Task Force and was in charge of the transportation of U. S. Army troops under General (then Maj. Gen.) Patton from the U. S. to Morocco on 8 Nov. 1942. Later, he established and commanded the U. S. Naval Forces in North West African Waters. He commanded the American half of the invasion of Sicily which established the U. S. Seventh Army under General Patton and also carried out supporting operations.

Subsequent commands included the Allied Combined Forces which established the Allied Army under Lt. Gen. Mark Clark at Salerno, the Eighth Fleet for operations on Anzio Beach, and the Allied Forces which went ashore in Southern France in 1944. In Aug. 1945, Admiral Hewitt assumed command of the U. S. Twelfth Fleet (U. S. Naval Forces in Europe). He later served at the Naval War College in an advisory capacity before reporting to his present duty in April 1947.

First Marine Reserve Retirement

The first Reserve Marine to qualify for retirement under the new Reserve Retirement Act (Public Law 810—80th Congress) is Col. Harvey L. Miller, who has served 39½ years as a regular and reserve in the Navy and Marine Corps.

He is boxing coach at the University of Maryland and also professor of journalism.

Test Pilot School

Twenty Naval aviators were graduated from the Test Pilot School at the Naval Air Test Center, Patuxent River, Md., last month, concluding the first class to attend the six months' course of instruction.

Rear Adm. Alfred M. Pride, USN, Chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, awarded each graduate a certificate for completion of the course.

The second session of the Test Pilot School will convene 17 Jan. 1949. It is anticipated that by the fall of 1949, aviators from other branches of the armed services and civilian test pilots from the aviation industry will be invited to attend classes.

Capt. F. P. Trapnell is commander of the Naval Air Test Center. Comdr. S. S. Sherby, USN, who directed the early in-course programs and the recent graduating class will report for duty in the Bureau of Aeronautics 1 Jan., 1949. He will be succeeded by Comdr. T. F. to train junior officers in the duties of communication officers within the Fleet Marine Forces, ground and aviation, emphasizing communications in amphibious operations.

(e) The Ordnance School, to train ordnance officers and enlisted technicians.

(f) The Air Observation School, to train officers for assignment to duty with the Fleet Marine Forces as tactical and gunnery aerial observers.

(g) The Marine Corps Aviation Technical School, to provide officers and selected staff non-commissioned officers with advanced technical instruction in aviation matters, with primary emphasis on field methods. Graduates are trained supervisors in aircraft engineering maintenance, aviation ordnance, and naval aviation supply and accounting.

(h) The Extension Division, to extend to eligible Marine Corps and Marine Corps Reserve personnel, by means of correspondence, the courses of instruction currently presented in the resident schools at Quantico.

Further, the Schools, through concentrated study and research, prepare studies, reference material, and texts on the administration, organization, tactics, technique, training, and equipment of the landing forces in amphibious operations. This is a continuation of the effort which was so successful in the production by the Marine Corps Schools of the Tentative Landing Operations Manual, adopted in 1938 as FTP-167, Landing Operations Doctrine, U. S. Navy.

To support these schools, and to provide coordination of instructional methods and material, academic sections in administration, aviation, intelligence, logistics, naval subjects, naval gunfire, artillery, and special subjects relating to tracked vehicles, chemical warfare, aerial observation, and engineer matters, are set up under the Academic Headquarters.

Short courses developing technique of instruction are conducted periodically for the benefit of instructors of the Marine Corps Schools and other organizations. An 11,000 volume reference library and a records section provide an ever expanding source of thought stimulation. Summer courses for Marine Reserve college students insure a sound base to the reserve structure and a source of new officers to the regular establishment.

That the wealth of this concentrated effort may be available to others not resident students, instructor teams are dispatched to Army, Navy, Air Force, and Allied schools. Much attention and effort is presently devoted to this important means for dissemination of information and development of coordination among the armed services. Special demonstrations involving artillery, close support aviation, and other phases of a landing operation, are particularly of interest to observers with limited time available for the study of arms coordination in close support of landing operations. The Marine Corps Equipment Board, at Quantico, works in close liaison with the Marine Corps Schools, testing and developing materiel for use in amphibious operations.

War years brought the same organized disruption as elsewhere. Emphasis was shifted to the training of junior officers and specialists. Senior officer students reworked and enlarged on problems involving the seizure of Pacific islands, problems notably similar to those encountered by their predecessors of the nineteen thirties, and varying in solutions according to the accelerated materiel development (Please turn to Next Page) ments of later days. As always, the beaches were the laboratory of the Schools.

In order that the instruction may not lose its sense of reality, frequent resort is had to the medium of command post exercises, demonstrations, field exercises, historical rides, and terrain exercises. Each spring, students and staff of the Marine Corps Schools, in conjunction with naval and Fleet Marine Force units, conduct an extensive Amphibious Command Post Exercise. The exercise lasts two weeks, and gives the students an opportunity to apply and observe in practice all of the various lessons learned in increments during the previous eight months.

That the essence of the National Security Act of 1947 may not be lost in the details of responsibilities assigned, the Marine Corps and the Marine Corps Schools regard as essential an ever expanding interchange of students and military knowledge with all armed forces of this nation. Fourteen per cent of the students of the Amphibious Warfare School, Senior Course, are other than Marines. Conferences, seminars, and critiques provide a valuable means of exchange of information and experiences between these members of the various services. A broader picture of national and international problems and development is given by prominent speakers from civilian, military, and government agencies. A variety of smaller naval vessels visit Quantico to provide the students observation of the latest naval developments in amphibious-type craft.

Thus, on the broad base of past experience, surrounded by all channels of present thought and development, the Marine Corps Schools shall continuously "study and review current tactics, technique, and equipment employed by the landing forces—for their improvement and development—to train officers "with particular emphasis on amphibious operations, in order to provide competent commanders and staff officers for the field forces of the Marine Corps."

Report On Ships Stores

Formulated for submission to a subcommittee of the House Committee on Armed Services by its professional staff is a report based on an investigation of the relation of Ships Service Stores of the Navy to the Central office located in Brooklyn, N. Y.

The investigation was ordered after complaints by wholesalers that freedom to make local purchases by individual sales stores was curtailed by the Central office. Whether there will be a recommendation of unification of Navy, Army, and Air Force Exchange Services awaits the release of the report.

Martin MARS Writes the Future of Seaplanes in Today's Navy Records*

With a series of record-breaking flights, the Navy's new Martin JRM-2 Caroline Mars has refocused attention on the importance of seaplanes in modern military supply planning. And further emphasized the reputation of Martin flying boats for high performance, endurance and reliability! First the Caroline Mars cracked the non-stop seaplane record with a 4748-mile-flight from Honolulu to Chicago. A few days later, this mighty ship carried the highest airborne tonnage in history, flying 68,283 lbs. from Patuxent, Md., to Cleveland. Now, this latest Martin Mars is in service in the Pacific, regularly carrying 39,000 to 40,000 lbs. over the 2,400 miles from Alameda, Cal., to Honolulu!

Said Vice Admiral John D. Price, Deputy Chief of Naval Operations: "Squadron VR-2 with its 145,000-lb. JRM-1 flying boats has provided outstanding evidence of the significant role which large flying boats can play in meeting the logistic needs of national defense. Requiring no prepared forward bases . . . the flying boats can provide air lift in large tonnage volume with efficiency and economy of operation and complete mobility as to bases. Carrying even larger loads than its sister ships, the Caroline Mars will provide an important boost to the total air lift available in the Pacific."

It's another Martin "first" . . . building air power to save the peace, air transport to serve it! THE GLENN L. MARTIN CO., BALTIMORE 3, Md.

Evening Dress Uniform

The Air Force this week released the following information concerning changes in the evening dress uniform:

Coat, Evening Dress

Description—A conventional, civilian commercial type, tailed coat to be converted into a military garment by removing the commercial buttons and replacing them with three (3), large, USAF evening dress coat buttons on each side of front of garment and two (2), 20 ligne ($\frac{3}{4}$ "), small buttons at the top of the skirt, at back at waist line. For those authorized to wear the aiguillette, a button attached to the body of the coat under collar on left or right, depending on the position in which aiguillette properly is worn.

Ornamentation, Sleeve—Two (2) inches from sleeve end, the USAF spearhead design of ornamentation, consisting of a separately attachable blue-black, broadcloth background with a spearhead seven (7) inches in height above horizontal braid, and five and one-half inches ($5\frac{1}{2}$ ") in width, based on a horizontal stripe of two-vein gold lace.

The U. S. Air Force: 1948

Air Force officials have reviewed progress of the Nation's youngest Service during its first full calendar year of activity and have listed 12 significant advancements. These were noted in an official Air Force statement as follows:

"Performed an aerial supply operation into blockaded Berlin that fed the city entirely by air for more than half the year.

"Captured the world speed record.

"Continued development of cruise-control and air-to-air refueling methods which greatly increased the range of its larger bombers.

"Began a vigorous program to strengthen the civilian components, with a Lieutenant General appointed as Special Assistant to the Chief of Staff for Reserve Affairs.

"Reorganized its domestic commands to improve the air defense of the United States.

"Increased its 53 operational groups to 60.

"Launched an aircraft procurement program designed to provide the Air Force with the most modern equipment in sufficient quantity to meet requirements.

"Ordered, accepted, and tested numerous types of new aircraft.

"Organized a permanent women's organization in the Regular Air Force.

"Welcomed a new Chief of Staff, General Hoyt S. Vandenberg, upon the retirement of General Carl Spaatz, first Chief of Staff of the autonomous Air Force.

"Increased its personnel strength from a total of 339,246 at the beginning of 1948 to more than 410,000, all volunteers, at the end of the year."

U. S. AIR FORCE

Military Justice

The Air Force disclosed this week publication of a new manual on military justice, which will go into effect on 1 Feb.

The manual is identical to the Army's new rules on military justice, but has a special preface which explains terminology singular to the Air Force.

Air Force officials, however, would not say this week whether a separate promotions list will be created for its Judge Advocates. The Army will take such action on 1 Feb., in conformity with provisions of the Selective Service Act of 1948, Title III of which amends procedures for execution of military justice.

Apparently Air Force officials have not yet decided whether this feature of the legislation is applicable to AF judge advocates. It was subsequent to passage of the Army's JA law, that the Air Force was given its own Judge Advocate General.

If a separate promotion list is authorized for AF judge advocates, it will be the first of its kind in the Air Force.

Thus, late this week the AF indicated that its administration of military justice would be identical to that of the Army insofar as court procedures are concerned and released its new manual; but hesitated to say whether the other provision applies to the Air Force and held up any announcement concerning a separate JA promotion list.

Reassign Four Air Generals

Reassignment of four Air Force general officers has been announced as follows:

Brig. Gen. William L. Ritchie, Chief of the Plans Division in the office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations, will be attached to the office of the Air Attache, American Embassy, London, England.

Brig. Gen. Joseph Smith, commanding general of Wiesbaden Area Command, U. S. Air Force in Europe, Germany, will replace General Ritchie as Chief of the Plans Division.

Brig. Gen. Edward H. White, Director of the Budget and Acting Assistant Comptroller, will become Assistant Comptroller.

Brig. Gen. Jack W. Wood, Director of Program Standards and Cost Controls, will replace General White as Director of the Budget.

Air Finance Career Planning

Coincidental with recent disclosure that the Army plans to inaugurate its enlisted career plan for finance personnel around March, Air Force officials indicated to the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL this week that preparations for the initiation of the Comptroller Occupational Area for AF enlisted personnel are progressing satisfactorily.

While no definite date is set for inception of the AF career program for finance personnel, it is reported that the most difficult spadework already has been completed.

It is expected that the Comptroller Occupational Area will be broken down into three major categories; Financial, to include auditing, budget and fiscal, disbursing and cost engineering subdivisions; Statistical and Program Standards and Cost Analysis.

Many job sheets in these fields are completed and others are nearing completion. Reportedly, the Program Standards and Cost Analysis field is the one requiring the most current study and review.

Utilization of WAF Personnel

The Air Force has promulgated the following policy concerning utilization of WAFS:

a. WAF personnel normally will be assigned with a view toward productive utilization of skills and the simultaneous provision of comprehensive data on WAF capabilities for use in rapid expansion of the Air Force in event of an emergency.

b. WAF personnel will be trained and assigned on an experimental basis, as required, for the purpose of determining the potentiality of women in the event of an emergency.

c. WAF personnel may be assigned, in other than aircrew duties, to any unit in which hand-to-hand conflict with the enemy normally is not anticipated in the event of deployment of such unit.

d. WAF enlisted personnel may be assigned to aircrew positions requiring the military occupational specialty of Flight Traffic Clerk, notwithstanding a above.

Airline Pilot Recalls

The Air Force has rescinded its policy of recalling Reserve commercial airline pilots to duty for temporary service on the Berlin airlift. Effective 1 Jan., pilots seeking such service must sign up for three years. The policy change apparently results from improvement in the personnel requirements for "Operations Vittles."

Air Force 810 Board

The Air Force board reviewing records of officers to determine if there are any officers who should show cause for their retention in active service has resumed its deliberations in Washington.

Board proceedings were interrupted for several weeks during December. Officials could not estimate when the board, acting under provisions of Public Law 810, will make its report.

Glider Rescue in Arctic

Six occupants of an Air Force C-47, which made a crash landing 13 Dec. on the frozen Stewart River seventy-five miles southeast of Dawson, Yukon Territory, were safely back at Ladd AFB, Fairbanks, Alaska, 14 Dec. after the first glider pick-up in the history of Arctic flying.

The six rescued were 1st Lt. Charles E. Daly, pilot; 1st Lt. Martin O. Goodyear, co-pilot; 1st Lt. Edward C. Whalen, navigator; Sgt. Weldon C. Johnson, engineer; Pfc. Richard D. Leppla, assistant engineer; and Lt. Comdr. Norman W. McLeod, USN, passenger.

A C-47, piloted by 1st Lt. Richard G. Lind, spotted the downed transport. A C-54 with a CG 15 glider in tow reached the crash scene at 11:30 AM AST and the glider, piloted by 1st Lt. Richard A. Hopkins landed on the river 100 yards from the downed C-47. The six survivors, all in good condition, climbed aboard the glider, and after three attempts—hazardous due to surrounding hilly terrain—succeeded in picking up the glider.

The C-54 crew included Lt. Col. Eugene O. Strouse, Pilot and Commanding Officer of Detachment B of the 10th Rescue Squadron at Ladd; Capt. Herbert W. Ritter, co-pilot; Capt. George A. Accas, navigator; S. Sgt. Buford O. Hill, radio operator; S. Sgt. Basil Stanko, engineer; S. Sgt. Harry A. Weber, assistant engineer; and Sgt. Willie C. Norris, tow reel operator.

B-29 Altitude Record

The Air Force has revealed that a new unofficial altitude record for B-29's—48,642 feet—was reached last September. Because of the restricted nature of the flight, it could not be divulged any sooner, a spokesman said.

The plane, piloted by Lt. Paul M. Crumley was manned by a crew from the 374th Reconnaissance Squadron of Fairfield-Suisun Air Force Base, Calif. They were engaged in measurement of the electrical current above thunderheads under a project sponsored by the Carnegie Institution of Washington, D. C.

Lieutenant Crumley said that the record was merely incidental to the needs of the mission. It was necessary, he added to climb to that height in order to traverse the tops of the thunderstorms in that particular vicinity. He pointed out that the altitude record cannot be officially accepted since required instruments were not aboard. However, he stated that he was certain the same altitude could be reached again.

Other members of the crew were Capt. Paul J. Scarboro, Co-pilot; 1st Lt. George E. Schmithe, navigator; 1st Lt. Richard H. Finnel, weather observer; 2nd Lt. Nestor Grechney, special equipment operator; S/Sgt. William L. Wallis, engineer; S/Sgt. Elton R. Grathwohl, radio operator; T/Sgt. Ralph W. Lovelace, crew chief; Sgt. Loren J. Pratt, radio operator.

George R. Waite and Oliver H. Gish, geophysicists representing the Carnegie Institution did not go on this flight, although they did participate in other flights on the project.

Nat. Guard Controversy

Convening of Congress this week focused the National Guard Federalization controversy on Capitol Hill, where an "all-out" public debate is assured—particularly as disputants argue for and against consolidation of the Air National Guard and Air Force Reserve.

Close on the heels of Secretary of Defense James Forrestal's recommendation last week for merging the Air National Guard and the Air Force Reserve, there were these significant ramifications:

1. Maj. Gen. Ellard A. Walsh, president of the National Guard Association, bitterly attacking Secretary Forrestal's legislative proposal, said "nobody is so foolish as to believe that if a part of the National Guard were federalized that it would be very long until determined efforts would be made to federalize the remainder, and termed it 'wishful thinking' if Secretary of the Air Force W. Stuart Symington believes he can prevail upon the NGA to accept the ANG-AF Reserve merger."

2. Lt. Col. Thomas G. Lanphier, jr., credited with having shot down Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto during World War II, and now Senior Air Officer of the Idaho ANG, called for support of the merger and said, "the Air National Guard as it is now constituted affords a luxurious flying club for the limited number of pilots fortunate enough to get into an ANG outfit. But it doesn't make for trained-to-the-minute combat pilots who can shoot, bomb and fly in any kind of weather." Referring to an "air force" as an ANG wing, group or squadron, Colonel Lanphier, 1948 president of the Air Force Association, said "the United States has four dozen air forces too many."

3. Maj. Gen. Kenneth F. Cramer, Chief, National Guard Bureau, said the ANG, with a strength of 34,981 officers and men on 15 Dec., has almost doubled its personnel in less than a year and now exceeds 60 per cent of its total allotted M-Day strength.

4. In Baltimore, Lt. Col. Robert L. Gould, commander of Air National Guard units in Maryland, maintained that the Air Force Reserve is "a stepchild of the Regular Services," and said many ANG pilots will resign if the merger is effected.

Adding fuel to the torrid public dispute was a denunciation by Maj. Gen. James E. Edmons, former commander of the 23d Division, of alleged "defeatist talk" by Army officers in National Guard training camps during the months preceding Pearl Harbor.

Writing in the current issue of the "National Guardsman," publication of the National Guard Association, General Edmons accused the Army of launching in 1941 a campaign of "deprecation and slander against the Guard as a whole, and most Guard higher commanders especially."

General Walsh, in a message to the State Adjutant Generals and to officials of the National Guard Association, called for "substantial contributions of time, effort and energy" in combatting Federalization legislation. He said "the situation existing with reference to the security of the Nation since the release of the Gray Board Report on 12 Aug. 1948 is exactly analogous with the cold war which has been and is still being waged in Europe and elsewhere. It is a war in which there can be no compromise with the principle involved."

General Walsh asked that State Legislatures be informed of the merger proposals and said, "they should have a full realization of the vital necessity of memorializing Congress, through the medium of a Joint Resolution, in opposing any attempt to change our present military system."

On the other hand, Colonel Lanphier said, "this new Congress is going to look with a pawn-broker's eye at every item of expense proposed by the Services. It is bound to find the flaw in a renewed request for both an Air National Guard and Air Force Reserve." Merger of the ANG and the AF Reserve, he added, will mean that "Uncle Sam will then be more likely to get his money's worth and the pilots concerned will be more likely to live a while in combat."

And as the dispute continued unabated, Congressional leaders prepared to take up the Federalization issue at forthcoming public hearings, certain to provide testimony echoing the controversy among opponents and proponents of merger legislation.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 8, 1949

"We are compelled to be strong militarily so long as there are cynical men who do not wish to see the world prosperous, to whom freedom is an affront and who can only understand the language of force."—ADMIRAL LOUIS DENFELD, USN, CHIEF OF NAVAL OPERATIONS.

OUR PRIORITY LIST

1. Immediate reenactment of the law authorizing special military exemptions from the Federal Income Tax, broadened to exclude all retired pay from taxation.
2. Increase of Service pay.
3. Prompt construction of suitable family quarters for commissioned and enlisted personnel at all permanent stations.
4. Early attainment and continued maintenance of a fully manned 70-group Air Force, equipped with the best modern combat aircraft.
5. Rapid expansion of our submarine fleet and accelerated development of anti-submarine vessels and equipment, with continued experimentation and construction of new naval types.
6. Organization and training of a balanced Mobile Ground Force, of sufficient strength and ready, with complete modern equipment, for immediate action in a National Emergency.
7. Liberal compensation for disability and service retirement of officers and enlisted men, with provision for retirement in highest grade satisfactorily held at any time.
8. Death benefits for survivors of military personnel based on today's higher living costs.
9. Increase in per diem allowances to compensate personnel for all expenses incurred while traveling on official duty.
10. Provision for the education of the children of Service personnel on active duty without expense where free public schools are not available.
11. Reimbursement for use of private automobiles on official business.
12. Close supervision and constant restudy of Service promotion and elimination policies to assure the prevention and prompt correction of injustices and inequities.
13. Continued scientific research and development in all new and unconventional methods of warfare, including atomic, biological, and radiological weapons, guided missiles and psychological warfare. Close liaison with industry and labor as elements of the National Defense team.
14. Development and improvement of the organization and training of the National Guard, Organized Reserves, and other civilian components, with proper inactive training pay and appropriate training facilities for all elements.

THE ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL this week publishes its new Priority List, covering some of the most essential requirements of the Armed Forces. Of most immediate importance is the proposal for the reenactment of legislation providing Federal income tax exemptions for officers and enlisted men. The law which granted these exemptions expired on 31 Dec. Unless early Congressional action is taken the pay of military personnel will be reduced through income tax deductions. The measure should be broadened to provide complete income tax exemption for the service pay of all retired personnel. Of parallel importance is the upward revision of Service pay. Prompt action should be taken to authorize a comprehensive program of construction of family quarters at all permanent stations. Housing is woefully inadequate; lack of quarters and low pay make it difficult for the Services to retain the most highly qualified commissioned and non-commissioned officers. Increased travel allowances, reimbursement for the use of private automobiles on official business, death benefits for survivors of military personnel, and provision for the education of children of servicemen, where public schooling is not available, are measures which should receive early and favorable consideration. The Congress should provide funds for the 70-Group Air Program, for expansion of our submarine fleet, for construction of anti-submarine vessels and equipment, and other new Naval types and experimental craft, and for sufficient well-trained, well-equipped ground troops for a small, but effective mobile striking force for immediate use in an emergency. Scientific research and development should be enlarged and the closest possible cooperation with science and industry should be maintained. Provision should be made for the continuous scrutiny of promotion and separation policies and administration to insure uniformity and to prevent individual injustices. The ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL will work diligently to obtain Congressional adoption of the measures on our Priority List and will seek the assistance of all supporters of National Security.

WHILE President Truman devoted most of his State of the Union message to a far-reaching domestic program of social legislation, his treatment of the National Defense was brief and pointed. He said:

"Until a system of world security is established upon which we can safely rely, we cannot escape the burden of creating and maintaining Armed Forces sufficient to deter aggression. We have made great progress in the last year in the effective organization of our Armed Forces, but further improvements in our National Security legislation are necessary. Universal training is essential to the security of the United States."

With this portion of his address there will be strong bi-partisan agreement. In today's uncertain world a strong United States, efficiently armed with the most modern weapons of the land, sea, and air, with Forces well trained in their use and industry ready and capable of rapid transformation to war production schedules, is the surest prevention of aggression. It is toward this end that the President sees need for improvements in national security legislation, including the continued need for Universal Training, the primary functions of which, though costly, cannot be fully performed under the Selective Service law. While the President does not specify at this time the additional defense legislation he feels necessary, Congress and the Services know that it must be based on a more attractive and realistic scale of pay for the personnel. Following this there should be enacted a statutory foundation for building and maintaining a modern Air Force in men and machines, a sound revision of the National Defense Act to permit the Army to build the Mobile Defense Force it needs, and funds to keep the Navy equipped with the most effective and modern types. These and the other items listed in THE JOURNAL's Priority List and discussed above demand the attention of Congress in order to attain the strong Armed Forces the President and the country want.

The Children's Hour

CPO (reminiscing): "When you were small, I remember throwing you in the air over and over until you went to sleep."

Sailor Son: "How did that put me to sleep?"

CPO: "We had a very low ceiling."

Satanic

Father: (to daughter coming in at 0400): "Good morning, child of Satan."

Home

Driving in a dense fog, a motorist followed the tail light ahead for a full hour, free from worry. Suddenly the red beacon ahead stopped, and the two cars collided. "Hey, why don't you put out your hand when you're going to stop?" yelled the man behind. Came the casual reply: "Why should I? I'm in my own garage!"
—The Klipper.

Prepared!

The proprietor of a prosperous hock shop made a custom of giving his son a cash gift on festive occasions. When the youngster observed his eighth birthday, he was ceremoniously handed a new five-dollar bill.

He promptly disappeared, and spent the afternoon going from one store to another and having the money changed, first into silver, then back into a five, and so on. News of his activities drifted back to his father, and that evening he demanded an explanation.

"It's like this pop," the lad explained patiently. "Sooner or later, somebody is going to make a mistake, and it ain't going to be me!"
—American Legion Magazine.

Good Indication

"The minute I laid eyes on this woman, I knew she hadn't been a widow very long."

"How could you tell?"

"The gun in her hand was still smoking."
—Army Post Times.

Equation

"I've discovered the secret of baldness."

"What is it?"

"Too much skin."
—The Selfridge News.

No Soap

"Yes, this is a nice little apartment, but where is the bath?"

"Oh, I thought you were one of those college boys who want a place just for the winter."
—Cp Pickett Post.

Enough to Live

Remarque, the French author, was asked by a beautiful North American girl why he didn't visit the U. S. He replied that he hesitated visiting the country as his vocabulary was limited to a few phrases: "How do you do; I love you; forgive me; forget me; ham and eggs, please."

The girl was astonished. "What! You say you don't speak English? With a vocabulary like yours, you could take a trip clear across the United States!"
—Foreign Service.

T. J. B.—According to the latest information released by the AGO Army 1st Lieutenants having five years' service for promotion purposes as of 15 December 1948 will be considered for promotion to the temporary grade of captain. The Department of the Air Force states that AF 1st Lieutenants must have had four and one-half years' service for promotion purposes as of 1 July 1948 to be considered for promotion to the temporary grade of captain.

H. W. W.—The Office of the QMG has advised us that all dogs trained by the Army were disposed of through the Treasury Department immediately after the war (1945).

R. J. R.—The Adjutant General's Office has advised us that a temporary officer having 20 or more years' active Federal service may be released from active duty for the purpose of reenlisting and being retired as an enlisted man. The fact that he may have signed AGO Form 160 does not make him ineligible for separation for the purpose of reenlistment and retirement.

P. B.—Under proposed legislation officers retired for disability who are found to be no longer disabled would be given an opportunity to return to active duty. Their retired pay would be discontinued.

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Foreign Affairs—In his State of the Union message to the Congress this week President Truman touched only lightly on foreign affairs, but indicated that later on he would request legislative action on several measures in the field of foreign policy. He did make specific recommendations to strengthen and extend the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act and to authorize admission of displaced persons to America without unfair discrimination.

The President said that this country was not seeking to freeze the status quo or to preserve past injustices. He referred to the efforts our country is making through the European Recovery Program, the Good Neighbor Policy, and the United Nations to help the economic growth and social advancement of the peoples of the world. He predicted that international cooperation would ultimately be supported even by those nations which seek to weaken or subvert it—the only obvious reference in the message to Soviet Russia and her satellites.

The foreign affairs section of the President's message was important for what it failed to say, rather than for what it said. In this respect it was generally regarded as conciliatory. Surprisingly enough, it did not mention the cold war with Russia, the Soviet blockade of Berlin, the Communist victories in China, the Palestine question or the proposed Atlantic Security Treaty. Some, or all of these matters will doubtless be discussed by the President in his inaugural address or in subsequent communications to the Congress.

It had been generally expected that the President would state our present position with reference to the current crisis in China, where the disintegration of the present government was expected in the immediate future. Presumably he is awaiting developments before committing our Government to a course of action.

In a New Year's peace feeler President Chiang Kai-shek suggested that he was agreeable to negotiations with the triumphant Reds, but only under certain conditions and with definite reservations. Shanghai and other nationalist communities have petitioned the onrushing Communists for an immediate cessation of hostilities. There were indications that the Chinese Reds would be satisfied with nothing short of complete and unconditional surrender of all nationalist forces, and condign punishment of Chiang and his leading supporters as war criminals.

There were reports that the nationalist government was preparing to flee from Nanking, either to Canton or Formosa. Some felt that there would be relative security on the island of Formosa, since the Communists, so successful on land, lack both a Navy and an effective air fleet, so essential to an over-water operation.

While Chiang and some of his followers continue to put up a brave show of resistance, current developments clearly point to an end of the present regime. China has been afflicted by war almost continuously for twenty years. Much of the country has been devastated and its economy has been wrecked. The people are not concerned with ideological concepts; they long only for peace. Chiang, the idol of the south for two decades, but never very strong in the north, has lost much of his popularity even in the south. He is generally regarded as a barrier to peace, and his tenuous tenure of leadership appears to be about over.

In the event of a collapse of the Chiang regime, it is probable that American military personnel would be immediately withdrawn from China. Included would be the members of our military mission to China, Marines at Shanghai and Tsingtao, and Naval personnel on shore duty at some of the more important ports. Dependents of Servicemen and many other civilians have already been evacuated. The Americans remaining in China are for the most part missionaries and representatives of American and foreign business interests. Many of the missionaries will remain irrespective of developments in the civil war, but practically all of the others are expected to leave if our military representation is withdrawn.

In another quarter of the Far East, the Dutch have completed the reconquest of Indonesia. In seventeen days the Netherlands troops concluded a well-organized and smartly-executed campaign and recovered nearly all of Java and Sumatra. Except for some Republican units in isolated pockets and guerrilla action in rural areas, practically all resistance has ceased. The action of the Dutch in reconquering Indonesia was in apparent violation of a truce agreement and it was vigorously condemned by the United States and other members of the United Nations Security Council. However, now that hostilities have ended and the Indonesian Republican government has ceased to function, it would appear that the United Nations will have difficulty in restoring the status quo ante.

In Palestine, as in Indonesia, the Security Council this week found that its orders were disregarded by belligerents. In the Negeb Desert, where the United Nations had issued a cease-fire order, vigorous fighting broke out between the Jews and Egyptians. At one time Israeli troops had crossed the border and were well inside Egypt. This posed a delicate question since Egypt has a treaty with England, whereby British troops would assist Egyptians in case of invasion. After receiving a sharp note from the United States, the Israeli government announced that its troops had been withdrawn from Egyptian soil. Subsequently, negotiations were begun by the Jews and Egyptians, with the view to an armistice which may be preliminary to the long-heralded Palestine peace.

The United States has requested information from Russia concerning the intentions of the Soviet government relative to some 400,000 German war prisoners still held by Russia. Under a four-power agreement to which Russia was a party, all German war prisoners were to be repatriated no later than 31 Dec. 1948. The United States, Great Britain and France have met this requirement, but several hundred thousand German prisoners are still held by Russia. The Soviet Union has likewise failed to release nearly a half million Japanese prisoners captured during Russia's brief participation in the war against Japan.

Bataan Surrender and History—In an address at Seattle, Dr. Louis Morton of the Army Historical Division stated that in surrendering his forces on Bataan on 9 April 1942, Maj. Gen. Edward P. King violated a direct order received from General Jonathan Wainwright, then in command of operations on the Philippines. General Wainwright quickly repudiated this statement. He declared that General Douglas MacArthur, then in Australia, but in overall command of American forces in the Far East, had informed him that there must be no thought of surrender. Therefore, when General Wainwright learned that General King planned to surrender his battered and exhausted troops on Bataan he attempted to countermand this action. However, he was too late as General King was already arranging the surrender. Hence, General Wainwright insisted, any implication that General King disobeyed his orders is unfounded. The General added that he knew the Bataan position was hopeless and that he had the highest respect and admiration for General King's courage and professional ability.

The disclosures of Dr. Morton were stated by him to have been based on a careful examination of relevant top secret documents of the Department of the Army. This material, it was ascertained, is still not available for public examination. This raises a question of ethics. Should a civilian historian employed by the Army, having access to secret files, be permitted to make such public use of this information as he sees fit?

General Dwight D. Eisenhower, just before he resigned as Army Chief of Staff, issued definite instructions that, insofar as possible, all Army documents pertaining to World War II be promptly declassified and made available to the public. The only exceptions were those directly affecting our National Security and those classified in accordance with binding agreements with other departments and other countries.

In the light of this directive it would appear that if certain facts gleaned from secret papers relating to our operations in the Philippines can be released by a civilian employee in a public address the sources of his information should be made immediately available to all writers, students and historians. No Army employee should be given a preferred status over other writers. If National Security still requires that these documents be kept secret, appropriate action should be taken by the Army to prevent security violations by its own employees.

Service Pay Increases—It is regrettable that Secretary Forrestal's Civilian Commission on Service Pay, in a report that contained so many commendable features, failed to include some personnel of long service within the pay increases it recommended for others. Under the proposed pay scale a number of officers on active duty in the ranks of major and lieutenant commander and below, with long service—including many former enlisted men serving as temporary officers—would actually be scheduled to receive less than their present pay and allowances. A savings provision, however, would prevent any actual loss of pay. Many of those now on the retired list would fall to benefit under the recommendations of the Hook Commission. Many officers with relatively short service who were retired for physical disability would be slated to receive only 50 per cent of the base and longevity pay of their grade, instead of 75 per cent as at present. Similarly those retired for age, with less than 30 years service, would receive retired pay proportionate to their length of service, instead of 75 per cent as now provided. In such cases individuals would be protected by a savings clause against any actual loss, but most of those affected would not receive any increase in retired compensation. In the forthcoming Congressional hearings the effect of the new program on all classes of active and retired personnel will be ascertained. The legislation as finally approved by Congress should provide reasonable pay increases for all active and retired members of the Armed Forces. None should be excluded from its benefits.

Royalls' Meet Army Dependents—Dependents of Army personnel in Germany are being provided accommodations which compare favorably with the best quarters the Army has available in the United States. This is the report of Secretary of the Army Kenneth C. Royall, just returned from a three-week inspection trip to Europe and the Mediterranean area.

With Mrs. Royall, the Army Secretary talked to scores of dependents. Secretary Royall said that he and Mrs. Royall were pleased with the favorable comments of wives of Army officer and enlisted personnel regarding housing and recreation accommodations.

While Secretary Royall was away from Germany on inspection trips to Greece, Turkey, Trieste, and Austria, Mrs. Royall busied herself in "homey" interviews with Army wives. What she discovered was almost complete satisfaction with Army efforts to make dependents as comfortable as possible in the occupied areas.

Navy Dental Corps—The Board for selection of senior dental students for assignment to active duty as Ensigns, HP, USNR, has announced that the ceiling of 100 vacancies has been filled. Most of the successful candidates have already been notified of their selection and the remainder will be so informed in the near future. The successful candidates will draw full pay and allowances while completing their 1948-49 senior year in dental school as active duty ensigns. Upon graduation they will be required to accept appointments in the Naval Dental Corps and serve a minimum of 2 years on active duty.

Commanders Eric G. F. Pollard and William C. Wohlfarth of the U. S. Naval Dental School have been authorized to attend a two weeks course in specialized warfare commencing 9 Jan. at the Army Chemical Center, Edgewood, Md. Comdr. T. A. Lesney, Head of the Oral Surgery Department at the U. S. Naval Dental School, was the guest essayist at the 3 Jan. meeting of the Southern Maryland Dental Society.

Navy Medical Corps—Capt. L. R. Newhouser, MC, USN, Director of the Professional Division, represented the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery at the meeting of the Committee on Blood and Blood Derivatives of the National Research Council at Harvard University on 6 to 9 Jan.

Lt. George W. Hyatt, MC, USN, holding a fellowship in orthopedics at the Lahey Clinic in Boston, has been authorized by the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery to visit bone banks in various hospitals and clinics in the middle west, including the Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minn. The purpose is to obtain additional information from nationally recognized specialists in this field to further assist in the development and technic in connection with bone banks. Dr. Hyatt will depart from Boston on 16 Jan. for about two weeks temporary additional duty.

Women's Medical Specialist Corps—Capt. Martha E. Moseman, of Atlanta, Ga., Chief Dietitian of the 20th Station Hospital (Philippine Scouts) at Clark Field, Central Luzon, has returned for reassignment in the United States following completion of a two-year tour of duty with the U. S. Army Nurse Corps in the Philippines. Capt. Moseman will assume her new duties with the Surgeon General's Office, Washington, D. C.

Provost Marshal General—Tribute to present organization and training of Military Police was paid by Judge Lyman K. Clark, Justice of the First District Court of Massachusetts at the December meeting of the New England Area's Armed Forces Disciplinary Control Board. Speaking to the Board, its Civilian Advisory Staff and to invited guests, Judge Clark compared conditions during the First and Second World Wars and said, "Families living adjacent to military establishments during both wars have been astonished at the small amount of friction between soldiers and civilians. I attribute this to the discipline of the Armed Forces. The law enforcement agencies of the military establishment during both wars, it would seem to me, were excellent but there is a marked improvement in the efficiency of the Military Policemen in the Second World War over the First World War. During the First World War, they put an armband on a soldier and called him an MP. During the Second World War the MP received specialized training and that training was reflected in the remarkably few cases where military personnel were brought into local courts."

Signal Corps—Organization of a Signal Corps Tradition Committee to insure greater understanding of the Corps' war and peacetime contributions to the science of communications, was announced recently by Brig. Gen. F. H. Lanahan, jr., Commanding General of Ft. Monmouth, N. J. Long range goals of the committee are designations of certain post buildings and landmarks in honor of distinguished military and civilian personnel; present a park development, reforestation and beautification program; overseas collection and display of significant equipment and photographs and documents, and introduce an integrated training and indoctrination program to acquaint civilian and military personnel with traditions of the Corps.

Under chairmanship of Col. Terence J. Tully, Executive Officer of the Signal Corps Board, the eleven member committee includes enlisted men and civilian representatives. Former Chief Signal Officers, post commanders and others formerly associated with the Corps will be asked to submit suggestions to implement the project. In addition, all Signal Corps units at home and overseas will be requested to report or procure communications equipment and other items which, because of historical or development significance, would materially add to the program.

Medical Service Corps—Col. Joseph U. Weaver, MC, Commanding Officer, Army Medical Center, has announced the appointment of Maj. Frederick M. Vandel, MSC, as Adjutant, Army Medical Center. He has been serving as Director of Personnel since March, 1946, and acting Adjutant for the past four months. Maj. Richard Ofutt has been named to succeed Major Vandel as Director of Personnel. He has been serving as Assistant Director of Personnel.

Naval Flight Training—Naval Aviation broadened its flight training in January by the addition of P2Vs to its multi-engine flight syllabus at Corpus Christi, Texas. P2V is the Navy designation for the Lockheed Neptune, world famous as the "Truculent Turtle," a fast utility twin-engine bomber successfully used for carrier launching. The Naval Air Advanced Training Command previously employed only Consolidated-Vultee Privateers and Martin Mariners for this purpose.

Personal Affairs of Military Personnel—Army commanders have been ordered to take "immediate and continuing action" to solve the bulk of personal problems of military personnel before they are ordered overseas. An Army announcement said "it is becoming increasingly apparent that commanders throughout the chain of command must intensify their efforts with regard to the personal affairs of the members of their commands."

Unification in Northeastern States—A three-service joint military team, established to push unification of Army, Navy and Air Force facilities and services in eight northeastern states, has completed surveys of space utilization, consolidation of printing facilities, laundries, automotive maintenance and recruiting facilities in the New York area, according to Maj. Gen. Roscoe B. Woodruff, First Army Deputy Commander.

General Woodruff is Chairman of the Northeast Area committee. Other members of the Northeast area group are: Col. Carleton J. Barker, USA, Deputy Chairman; Capt. Wade DeWeese, USN; Capt. Horace B. Elliott, USN; Col. Dache M. Reeves, USAF, and Col. Frederick M. Byerly, USAF. With headquarters at 90 Church St., New York, N. Y., this committee is responsible for survey work in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York and New Jersey.

Army Field Forces—Col. Jacques de la Boisse, French Military Attache, visited Ft. Monroe and the Office, Chief, Army Field Forces, on Wednesday, 5 Jan. He was welcomed to the post by General Jacob L. Devers, Chief, Army Field Forces. Col. W. A. Samouce, Information Officer, and Lt. Col. K. K. Hansen, Special Projects Officer, Information Section, were in Washington, D. C., 7 Jan. to confer with the Army Day project officer from Department of the Army. Lt. Col. S. I. Gilman, Developments Section, met with officers of the Office, Chief of Ordnance, Washington, D. C., 6-8 Jan. to discuss guided missiles.

Lt. Col. J. H. Kochevar, Developments Section, left Ft. Monroe on 8 Jan. for the Naval Ordnance Unit, Key West, Fla., to attend a meeting of a panel on underwater ordnance. He is scheduled to return on 12 Jan. Lt. Col. A. W. Betts, Engineer Section, has been assigned to the Research & Development Division, Department of Army, Washington, D. C. He left Ft. Monroe, on 4 Jan.

Veterinary Corps—George Washington University has announced the appointment of Maj. Thomas C. Jones to the Graduate Council as a Master in Research in the field of comparative pathology. His research work in equine periodic ophthalmia and equine influenza has added greatly to the knowledge of the veterinary profession regarding these two diseases. Maj. Fred D. Maurer has received the Doctorate Degree from the Graduate School of Cornell University. He majored in pathology and biochemistry while studying for this degree. Also, he was selected to the Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi.

Medical Care for Dependents—In face of the increasing shortage of Medical Department professional personnel, "soon to become critical," according to an official announcement, the Army and Air Force have ordered commanders to eliminate abuses of the medical service available to dependents. Circular 396 and AF Letter 160-23 declares "that in some areas medical care in excess of reasonable requirements is being requested by dependents of military personnel. . . . The convenience of medical facilities in certain areas and the fact that there is no direct cost involved prompt dependents to take advantage of these facilities by requesting treatment for many conditions, often very minor in nature, for which they would not consult a civilian physician were they members of a civilian community. . . . It is evident also that the demand on attending surgeons for house calls to dependents is increasing and that many of these calls prove to be for relatively insignificant complaints." These house calls, the Army and Air Force said, except in emergency, must be curtailed at most installations "if essential medical care is to be provided in dispensaries and hospitals."

Army Audit Agency—The Army Audit Agency has been removed from the functional supervision of the Assistant Secretary of the Army and has been placed under the Army Comptroller. The Chief, Army Audit Agency, will be responsible through the Army Comptroller and the Chief of Staff to the Secretary of the Army.

Navy Medical Service Corps—Lt. Comdr. Ralph William Price, MSC, USN, was placed on the retired list 1 Jan. after serving 31 years and nine months on continuous active duty. He first enlisted in the Navy in 1917 at Indianapolis as a Hospital Apprentice second class, was appointed Pharmacist in 1929, Chief Pharmacist 1936 and to Lieutenant Commander in 1947. In 1945 he received a special commendation from the Commandant of the 14th Naval District for "Outstanding performance of duty" while serving as administrative assistant to the District Medical Officer during 1944-45. His last duty station was U. S. Naval Hospital, Oakland, Calif.

Lt. Gordon C. Bell, MSC (Medical Allied Science Section) is another recent appointee in the Medical Service Corps of the regular Navy, and has been assigned to the Naval Medical Research Institute, NMMC, Bethesda.

Judge Advocate General's Department—The first printing of the Manual for Courts Martial, U. S. Army, 1949, which will become effective on 1 Feb. 1949, has become available for limited distribution. Publication of the new manual completes a project for improvement in the administration of military justice which was begun by Secretary of the Army Kenneth C. Royall in 1946, when he was Under Secretary of War, and sponsored by him through his support of the recent amendments of the Articles of War. In commenting on the new manual Mr. Royall stressed the broad reforms carried into effect by the amendments and the efforts of the Army to bring to the administration of military justice all the basic safeguards of civil criminal procedure with a minimum of technicalities.

The new manual contains an introduction by Maj. Gen. Thomas H. Green, The Judge Advocate General, under whose direction the manual was prepared and edited, in which General Green states, "This manual incorporates changes prescribed in the amendments of the Articles of War on 24 June 1948 and those indicated by experience during the twenty years since the promulgation of the Manual for Courts Martial, 1928, particularly that gained during World War II." It is expected that the manual will reach all echelons of the Army, down to company level, early in January 1949.

Corps of Engineers—Headquarters, U. S. Army, Pacific, recently announced the appointment of Lt. Col. William R. Shuler as Deputy Engineer. During World War II Colonel Shuler served as Task Force Engineer at Kiska, Aleutians, in 1943, and as Commanding Officer of the 1115th Engineer Group in 1944 in the European Theater. He was promoted to full colonel at Kiska in 1943 and reverted to lieutenant colonel in 1947. Colonel Shuler served with the Manhattan Engineer District in Washington, D. C., and with the Seattle Engineer District before going to Hawaii.

Transportation of Dependents—The Army (No. 35-4880) and Air Force (No. 173-7) have published a revised version of regulations pertaining to reimbursement for transportation of dependents. The regulations supersede AR 35-4880, 13 May 1947, and Section I, Circular 141, War Department, 1947.

Army Medical Library—In a literary good-will gesture, the Army Medical Library has offered whatever aid it can extend to the School of Medicine at the University of Chile in Santiago, whose 50,000 volume library was 60 per cent destroyed by a recent fire. Ironically, the library blaze broke out only several hours after Mr. Edward Heiliger of the Rockefeller Foundation had left Chile upon completion of a two-year project in which he reorganized the collection of medical volumes.

Student Officer Studies—The Army has warned that all studies prepared by students at Army Service schools as part of their official duties are to be used for official purposes only and will not be made available for publication in any manner which would indicate Army indorsement. The Army said, however, this is not intended to preclude personnel from writing special articles on military subjects for publication provided the information is not represented as being official or having Army approval and proper review and clearance is obtained.

Chemical Corps—Effective 15 Jan., the Chemical Corps will be given responsibility for procurement assignment for chemical bombs. The Chief of Ordnance has been ordered to transfer to the Chief, Chemical Corps, available funds, drawings and specifications, planning studies, production facilities and industrial reserve equipment and other pertinent items relating to this transfer.

Army Finance Dept.—Maj. John L. Ward, formerly assigned to the Military Personnel Division, Office of the Chief of Finance, is on temporary duty in the Chief's office prior to assumption of his new duties with the Rome Finance Office, U. S. Army, Rome, Italy. Major Ward just recently completed the Associate Basic Finance Officers Course, Army Finance School, St. Louis, Mo.

On Friday, 31 Dec., military and civilian personnel of the Office Chief of Finance witnessed the presentation by Maj. Gen. W. H. Kasten, Chief of Finance, of a Certificate of Service to Mr. Clarence A. Mayo on the occasion of the latter's retirement after more than forty-two years' service.

Recent visitors in the Office of the Chief of Finance included Col. George Van Studdiford, former Finance Officer, Paris Finance Office, U. S. Army, Paris, France. Colonel Van Studdiford is on leave at the present time.

Correction of Military Records—An Air Force Board on Correction of Military Records, composed of seven Air Force civilian officials, has been appointed by Secretary of the Air Force Symington.

The purpose of the board is to conduct hearings and investigations as may be necessary to provide the Secretary of the Air Force with recommendations upon which errors in military records of United States Air Force personnel may be corrected or injustices removed. The Secretaries of the Departments of the National Military Establishment now have the same jurisdiction in this connection as formerly was possessed by the Congress.

New Classification Test—Air Training Command has adopted an Airmen Classification Test system devised to measure individual aptitudes for various occupational skills. The new test system, expected to result in more efficient utilization of USAF manpower, replaces the Army's General Classification Test which was designed more to determine overall ability rather than aptitude for a particular job.

The new testing method was developed by the Research and Development Division of Air Training Command after two year of study, during which experimental questions were given to approximately 100,000 basic airmen at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Texas. The new test requires two days for completion and consists of eight major groupings of related specialties.

A limited number of copies of the Army and Navy Journal's historic volumes, "United States At War" is still available. Profusely illustrated they merit a place in every well balanced library.

A small number of each of the volumes is ready for distribution at $3.00 per copy in paper binding and $5.00 in cloth binding. (Copies of Volume I are available only in paper binding.)

U. S. COAST GUARD

THE Coast Guard has set 1968 as the target date by which it hopes to have one half of the officers assigned to Merchant Marine Safety duties with Merchant Marine background and the other half, Academy graduates. Appointment of officers in the Coast Guard from the Merchant Marine and the assignment of Academy officers to Merchant Marine safety will be effected once a year, according to present plans.

The majority of appointees, it is reported, will be in the 26-32 year age group, with the exception of individuals specially recommended by the Commandant. The maximum rank to be given appointees from the Merchant Marine will be lieutenant commander.

During the two-year probationary period of service by former Merchant Marine officers, typically they will have three months military indoctrination, nine months at sea aboard a major cutter, three months ashore at a district office or other major establishment, three months in merchant marine safety indoctrination and six months on merchant marine safety duty.

The Coast Guard said that in view of contemplated retirements of former Bureau of Marine Inspection and Navigation personnel, it is expected that 30 eligible Merchant Marine officers will receive Coast Guard commissions about 15 May.

New Skipper for Campbell

Comdr. Watson A. Burton has been designated commanding officer of the Campbell, succeeding Capt. Beckwith Jordan, ordered to duty at 3d Coast Guard District Officer Representative in Philadelphia.

Army Enlistment Policy

The Army has announced that it has no present plans to enlist or recall as Reservists personnel on the retired list. Officials said that enlistment of Regular Army personnel retired for disability or service are prohibited under provisions of Circular 66, 1948. This restriction applies also to Air Force personnel who have been retired and desire to enlist in the Regular Army. Similarly, Enlisted Reserve Corps personnel of all Services retired under Public Law 190 will not be recalled to active duty or enlisted in the Regular Army.

The Army and Air Force have announced that eligibility for shipment of privately-owned automobiles to Korea is restricted to commissioned officers, warrant officers and enlisted personnel of the first three grades certified to remain in Korea as members of the American Mission; to above personnel whose assignment to the Mission originates in the zone of interior under competent permanent change of station orders.

Personnel on duty in an overseas command, who desire shipment of a privately-owned automobile from the United States to a station in Korea, will furnish the Commanding General, San Francisco Port of Embarkation, with an authorization issued by the Chief, American Mission in Korea, for the shipment of the vehicle.

FINANCEFinancial Digest

Business interests this week found that the President's program to impose checks on inflation was about what was expected and were gratified that the proposals were not as drastic as had been feared in some quarters.

Several deflationary measures were recommended to Congress by the President in his State of the Union message on Wednesday. They included continuance of consumer credit control, export control authority, transportation priorities and allocation control, extension and strengthening of rent control, regulation of speculations on commodity exchanges, authorization of priorities and allocations of key materials in short supply, and standby authority for imposition of price ceilings for scarce commodities and for limitation of unjustified wage advances.

The President also recommended a study of production facilities for materials in critically short supply, such as steel, and if necessary the authorization of Government loans for expansion, or direct Government construction of facilities, if private industry fails to meet National requirements.

Repeal of the Taft-Hartley Labor Act, and reenactment of the Wagner Act, with amendments to outlaw jurisdictional strikes and unjustified secondary boycotts, and to provide means for preventing or settling strikes in vital industries were also recommended.

The President asked for new tax legislation to raise an additional $4 billion in revenue, to come largely from increased corporate taxes, with a portion from revised estate and gift taxes, and possibly from higher personal income tax rates in the upper and middle brackets.

MERCHANT MARINEMerchant Marine

A provocative article by a Coast Guard officer in the current issue of the "Naval Institute Proceedings" this week elicited interest in shipping circles.

Under the title, "A Well Disciplined Merchant Marine?", Lt. Holmes F. Crouch, on duty with the Coast Guard Office of Merchant Marine Safety, declared that "insubordination, inattention to duty, intoxication, ineptitude, willful carelessness, subversion and other similar acts do exist on many of our merchant ships today."

The Coast Guard officer said that unless merchant ships are manned by competent men who are reliable and disciplined, the national defense is jeopardized.

Lieutenant Crouch said that during World War II the Coast Guard conducted some 80,000 disciplinary hearings involving licensed officers and certified seamen of the merchant marine. He estimated that only about two per cent of the active personnel manning merchant ships are involved in "more serious breaches of shipboard discipline," but added that "the actions of this minority infringe upon the welfare and safety of the majority and could do real harm, especially in time of war. It is a known feature of seagoing life," he said, "that the actions of one or two can demoralize and disorganize a whole ship."

What is needed, Lieutenant Crouch observed, is a revision of the merchant marine disciplinary structure and codification of relevant laws.

Army Relief Society

The Army Relief Society, 350 Fifth Avenue, New York 1, N. Y., at a recent meeting appointed Mrs. Robert P. Patterson as chairman of its Pension Committee.

Mrs. Patterson succeeds Mrs. Aristides Moreno, under whose leadership the committee has functioned since its origin in 1942. Mrs. Patterson has been vice-chairman, with Mrs. Frank R. McCoy, co-chairman, Mrs. Harry P. Storke, and Mrs. David Wagstaff, president of Army Relief Society, being a member ex-officio.

The following extracts from Mrs. Moreno's final report give an indication of the work and achievement of the committee:

Widows' Pensions

"It is the responsibility of the Pension Committee to watch over the interests of the widows and orphans in regard to pension and insurance, to assure them all benefits to which they may be entitled, with the shortest possible delay. The committee is ever alert to specific cases in which there appear inequities in pension laws and in the interpretation of the laws by the Veterans Administration.

"For example in non-service-connected death, widows of veterans of World War I and II with income exceeding $1000 annually are not eligible for pensions, but the committee recently brought to the attention of the Veterans Administration the case of a widow whose annuity was slightly in excess of $1000. It represented to them that in computing federal income taxes annuity is not income, and on this basis the original decision was reversed, —the widow now receives a pension.

Aid to Claimants

"Death by suicide is generally held as 'not in line of duty,' and therefore not eligible for pension but in some cases the committee has invited to the attention of the Veterans Administration extenuating circumstances, or an excellent war record, justifying decision in favor of pension.

"Lack of legal proof of relationship often poses a question in the granting of pension. The committee undertakes to secure satisfactory proof in such cases. The committee has received recognition and the cooperation from all agencies with whom it has had common cause. This year it was asked by the Advisory Commission on Service Pay to submit recommendations based on Army Relief Society experience in handling cases."

Taxes and Pay in Congress

support continuation of the tax relief. Joining him was Representative Eberharter (D-Pa.), who revealed his intention to reintroduce H.R. 6710 of the 80th Congress, which provided for extending the remission to 1 Jan. 1950.

Going further, Representative Martin (R-Iowa) said he would support the income tax legislation and indicated to the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL his active support for the pay proposals of Secretary Forrestal's Advisory Commission. Said Representative Martin: "I am in favor of keeping the Armed Services on a high plane and adequate pay is necessary to make this possible. The comparative basis of civilian and military pay requires this. Otherwise, we will lose men of quality and high calibre. We need to make service in the Armed Forces so attractive that draft of enlisted men will be unnecessary."

Thus, even in the midst of the excited activity of the first days of a new Congress, key legislators evidenced immediately sympathetic understanding for the plight of military personnel, who face reduced pay as a result of income tax deductions at a time when there is universal agreement that pay scales of the Armed Forces must be raised.

And beyond the tax and pay measures, the Congressional hopper was filled with varied legislation affecting the Armed Forces (see Calendar of Legislation).

These ranged from a proposal by Representative Elston (R-Ohio) to provide military status for women who served overseas with the AUS during World War I, a request by Representative Anderson (R-Calif.) to permit use of oleomargarine by the Armed Forces, and a measure by Representative Kilday (D-Tex.) to create an Air Force Academy at Randolph Field, Tex., to H.R. 316 by Representative Vinson, which would require statutory authorization for certain ship construction.

The veteran Georgia Congressman said the Navy should be required to get specific approval from Congress before constructing any vessels of more than 65,000 tons. Concerning the Air Force, Representative Vinson revealed his intention to press for a strength of 70 groups, plus 22 separate squadrons and 61 reserve groups. This, he said, would be a specific authority, not merely an objective recorded solely in appropriation legislation.

Representative Vinson said the 20 per cent luxury tax on perfumes, jewelry, furs and other luxuries should be levied on items sold at post exchanges.

Strength of the Air Force, as related by Representative Vinson, should be 502,000 men, not including cadets, reserves on active duty for training, officer candidates and one year enlistees.

To the Air Force, he would allow 24,000 aircraft or 225,000 airframe tons of planes, whichever was desired. Permission would be given for the purchase of 5,200 new planes a year to replace older models.

Furthermore, Representative Vinson said the Air Force should be able to buy guided missiles without reducing the number of planes and should be required by law "to intensify and participate in research and development programs."

Army strength, explained the Armed Forces Committee chairman, should be 837,000, making up 12 regular divisions, five regimental combat teams and supporting combat and service units. The Army bill as foreseen by Representative Vinson would allow a reserve of 27 National Guard divisions and 21 National Guard regimental combat teams in addition to 25 Organized Reserve Corps divisions.

The Army, like the Air Force, would be given statutory responsibility for guided missile development and exploitation, Navy legislation for which was accomplished several years ago, Representative Vinson said.

Noting that the exclusive authority for the Navy's construction of the 65,000-ton super-carrier is contained in an appropriation measure—just as is the case for the 70 group Air Force—Representative Vinson maintained that the Navy should be required to come before Congress for specific permission to build ships that cannot pass through the Panama Canal. Since the Navy, with only one battleship in active service, has no known plans for battleship construction, Representative Vinson's measure is seen as a possible curtailment of future carrier construction.

By next week, the early flood of legislation inundating the new Congress doubtless will subside. Then, the long committee hearings will begin, wherein will be hammered out the final legislative proposals to reach the floor of the House and Senate. Return of the Democrats to majority control of the Congress means that in each committee, a new chairman will be rapping the gavel. One of them said this week that he wants to merge two subcommittees handling defense appropriations.

Representative Cannon (D-Mo.), House Appropriations Committee chairman, said the two subcommittees responsible for the military budget hearings should be unified to coordinate more efficiently all Army, Navy and Air Force spending.

As Congressmen maneuvered this week for choice assignments, here what was happening in the key military committees:

Little progress was made in the matter of selection of committees by the Committees on Committees of the House and Senate. Only the Democratic members of Senate committees were selected immediately. House members of neither political parties were designated.

Changes on the Senate Committee on Armed Services invited criticism within and outside of Congress because of the appointment of Senators Hill (D-Ala.), Kilgore (D-W. Va.) and Maybank (D-S. C.) on other committees, all of these former members having in the past given strength to the Committee. Senators Hill, Kilgore, and Maybank were named to the Appropriations Committee.

In their place, four new members were added to the Armed Services Committee: Senators Virgil Chapman (D-Ky.), Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex.), Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) and Lester C. Hunt (D-Wyo.). Of the new blood added to the committee, only Senators Johnson and Kefauver have had Congressional experience. Senator Johnson is recognized as giving strength to the Committee because of his years of service on the Naval and Armed Services Committees of the House. Senator Kefauver's experience has been gained in committees other than Military or Naval.

Lost from the Appropriations Committee by death has been Senator Overton (D-La.), and, by transfer to other committees or duties, Senators Tydings (D-Md.) and Green (D-R. I.). Members of the 80th Congress continuing on the committee are Senators McKellar (Tenn.), Hayden (Ariz.), Thomas (Okla.), Russell (Ga.), McCarran (Nev.) and O'Mahoney (Wyo.). Added to the committee are Senators Chavez (N. Mex.), Maybank (S. C.), Ellender (La.), Hill (Ala.), Kilgore (W. Va.), McClellan (Ark.), and Robertson (Va.), all of whom have had long experience in Congress. No freshman members are on this committee.

Until the Republican members are selected, the subcommittees will not be known, but it is claimed there will be just one subcommittee to handle the appropriations of the three Departments of the Military Establishment, this for the purpose of having an over-all picture of the needs of the Armed Services.

The Professional Staff of the Senate Committee on Armed Services is slated to continue as during the 80th Congress. To date the only known change in the office staff of that committee will be the replacement of the Chief Clerk, Mr. John G. Adams. The chairman of the committee, Senator Millard Tydings (D-Md.), has announced the appointment of Mr. J. Nelson Tribby, of Baltimore, Md., to be secretary to the committee.

Senator Tydings said: "Mr. Tribby has been the Adjutant of the American Legion in Maryland for the past decade. He served with Senator Tydings in the 115th Infantry at the outbreak of World War I. Later, he was transferred to the 7th Division and served with this Division in action from May 1918 to the end of the war. He was transferred to the U. S. Army Intelligence Service with the 7th Division. Mr. Tribby has long been interested in the nation's preparedness and national defense policies."

Whether the Senate Committee on Armed Services will function through subcommittees will depend on the number of bills referred to it and on the attention that has to be given to legislation handled by other committees to which its members belong.

New Pay Plan Official

Secretary of Defense James Forrestal announced officially this week that the new military pay plan for soldiers and airmen will go into effect on 1 July.

Principal feature of the new pay procedure will be the issuance of a pay card to Army and Air Force personnel. All information pertaining to the individual's pay will be carried on the card, to be kept at his finance office.

A plan to initiate twice-a-month pay days for the Army and Air Force has been abandoned because of the necessity to conserve personnel.

In announcing the pay plan, Secretary Forrestal said it would provide these advantages:

- (a) prompt and accurate payment of personnel regardless of location;
- (b) payment notwithstanding changes of stations, and efficient transfer of pay accounts;
- (c) a minimum of paper work required of disbursing officers and reduce recopying of pay data;
- (d) accurate and efficient registration of allotments for payments, to dependents, payments of insurance or other types of authorized allotments;
- (e) more frequent submission of pay data in order to reduce losses of records incident to the casualties of war;
- (f) mobility of pay records and equipment;
- (g) uniform pay records and procedures;
- (h) constant preservation of correct name and serial number.

N. G. Officers Can Retain Status

Maj. Gen. Kenneth F. Cramer, Chief, National Guard Bureau, yesterday announced provisions approved by the Army and Air Force Chiefs of Staff permitting National Guard officers to retain their Guard unit status while on extended active duty. States now will be able to continue to carry officers on unit rolls of units as extra to the T/O positions while the officers are on EAD. Heretofore, the position could be held open only if left unfilled in the Guard unit.
